

FGV

1. Do you have any experience in leadership? Tell me more about it.

Ans: In my role as a project manager for Malam Ambang Merdeka, there was a time when my team was understaffed, leading to workload accumulation. Besides encouraging my team and establishing trust that we would meet the deadlines, I engaged in a comprehensive discussion with the management team about improvements we could implement. I delegated tasks to each individual according to their strengths and established a timeline for completion while keeping my teacher informed. In the end, the event went smoothly, the audience had fun, and we received great feedback from the principal. I learned how important open communication and adaptability are in a group project.

2. Tell me about your strengths and weaknesses as an individual Strengths:

Ans: I am driven by a strong sense of responsibility for achieving goals. I believe in taking full ownership of my tasks and delivering on expectations with diligence and determination. I am confident that with persistence and hard work, I can overcome challenges and successfully meet objectives, no matter how difficult they may seem. Weaknesses: I am currently working on developing my sense of humour. In professional settings, I tend to be quite serious, and I recognize the need to lighten the atmosphere at times. I am actively learning to inject more humour and positivity into my interactions, understanding that not everything needs to be approached with solemnity.
